Welcome

Dance Consortium theatres throughout the UK are delighted that you have been able to join us for our 44th tour of the best international dance from across the world. For this tour we welcome back the Mark Morris Dance Group with their wonderful production of Pepperland. A few of us were privileged to see the world premiere of Pepperland in Liverpool in May 2017 as part of the Sgt. Pepper at 50 celebrations. The fantastic response from audiences persuaded us that this was a show that deserved to be seen across the nation – we hope you enjoy it!

As ever the tour will be accompanied by an extensive Learning and Participation programme, including a programme of Dance for Parkinson's activity. Dance for Parkinson's was pioneered by the Mark Morris Dance Group and now grows in strength across the UK; you can find a fascinating article about the network by Dance Consortium's Learning and Participation Coordinator Fiona Ross later in this programme.

The next Dance Consortium tour will be a first time UK tour by the South African company Dada Masilo with their production of Giselle, which starts at Sadler's Wells on Friday 4th October, before visiting venues across the UK – one definitely not to be missed!

In the meantime we hope you enjoy Pepperland and would welcome your feedback on our social media platforms @danceconsortium using the hashtag #Pepperland.

Thank you.
Ros

Investing in Dance:

The Support That Makes Pepperland Possible by Ryan Wenzel

It takes a long time to bring a work like Mark Morris' Pepperland to the stage. The steps are many: composing and arranging the music, choreographing the movement, rehearsing the dancers and musicians, designing the decor, lighting, and sound. Seldom mentioned is the funding required to set it all in motion.

Dance companies often rely on support from foundations and individual donors to fund new works, and only after the premiere convince presenters to schedule performances. Mark Morris Dance Group, however, has developed a model that is unusual in the dance world, whereby multiple arts institutions join together to commission a piece—often years before it will reach their stages.

This approach began with Mozart Dances (2006), a three-way commission, and grew over time with Romeo and Juliet (2008), Acis and Galatea (2014), and Layla and Majnun (2016). It reaches unprecedented scale with Pepperland, which received advance funding from no fewer than seventeen institutions. They span the United States, Canada, and the United Kingdom; are based in towns, cities, and on university campuses; and include both non-profit and for-profit entities.

"The support provided by these institutions sustains us, and shows their unique understanding of the hidden costs involved with creating dance works of this size," says Nancy Umanoff, executive director of Mark Morris Dance Group.

This funding model serves the commissioning partners well, too, and is based largely on Morris's importance and the trust they have in his work. "Like all arts organizations, we need to be careful about how we marshal our resources. But the excellence that Mark represents is at the heart of what we do, so we support it wholeheartedly," says Matías Tarnopolsky, former executive and artistic director of Cal Performances at the University of California, Berkeley, which has worked with Morris and his dancers for three decades.

Mike Ross, director of the Krannert Center for the Performing Arts of the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, echoes Tarnopolsky and adds that the Dance Group's offstage outreach has also been crucial in furthering their close-knit relationship. "In addition to annual performances, they have brought workshops and other activities to our campus, and to the local population at large," says Ross. "Because they have become part of our community, it is easy for us to support them and their work on this level."

A separate community—one with a reputation for supporting superior new work—has coalesced around the commissioning organizations themselves, enticing others to join. Pepperland marks the Banff Centre's first commission of a Morris work, yet there are no plans for the piece to be performed on its stages in Alberta, Canada; it will instead, by arrangement with the Banff Centre, play at the Sony Centre in Toronto, more than 2,000 miles away. "We wanted to support Mark and his company, of course, but also for audiences to know that we support work of this caliber alongside other great organizations," says Janice Price, the Banff Centre's president. "It is incredibly rewarding to be seen as part of the ecosystem that makes this happen."

And if history is any indication, that ecosystem will only continue to strengthen and grow.

MARK MORRIS was born on August 29, 1956, in Seattle, Washington, where he studied with Verla Flowers and Perry Brunson. In the early years of his career, he performed with the companies of Lar Lubovitch, Hannah Kahn, Laura Dean, Eliot Feld and the Koleda Balkan Dance Ensemble. He formed the Mark Morris Dance Group (MMDG) in 1980 and has since created over 150 works for the company. From 1988 to 1991 he was Director of Dance at Brussels' Théâtre Royal de la Monnaie, the national opera house of Belgium. In 1990, he founded the White Oak Dance Project with Mikhail Baryshnikov. Much in demand as a ballet choreographer, Morris has created 22 ballets since 1986 and his work has been performed by companies worldwide, including San Francisco Ballet, American Ballet Theatre, Ballet du Grand Théâtre de Genève and the Royal New Zealand Ballet. Noted for his musicality, Morris has been described as "undeviating in his devotion to music" (The New Yorker). He began conducting performances for MMDG in 2006 and has since conducted at Tanglewood Music Center, Lincoln Center and BAM (Brooklyn Academy of Music). He served as Music Director for the 2013 Ojai Music Festival. He also works extensively in opera, directing and choreographing productions for the Metropolitan Opera, New York City Opera, English National Opera and The Royal Opera, Covent Garden, among others. He was named a Fellow of the MacArthur Foundation in 1991 and has received eleven honorary doctorates to date. He has taught at the University of Washington, Princeton University and Tanglewood Music Center. He is a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and the American Philosophical Society and has served as an Advisory Board Member for the Rolex Mentor and Protégé Arts Initiative. Morris has received the Samuel H. Scripps/American Dance Festival Award for Lifetime Achievement, the Leonard Bernstein Lifetime Achievement Award for the Elevation of Music in Society, the Benjamin Franklin Laureate Prize for Creativity, the International Society for the Performing Arts' Distinguished Artist Award, Cal Performances Award of Distinction in the Performing Arts, the Orchestra of St. Luke's Gift of Music Award and the 2016 Doris Duke Artist Award. In 2015, Mark Morris was inducted into the Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney Hall of Fame at the National Museum of Dance in Saratoga Springs, New York. Morris opened the Mark Morris Dance space for local artists, outreach programs for children and seniors and a school offering dance classes to students of all ages and abilities.

The MARK MORRIS DANCE GROUP was formed in 1980 and gave its first performance that year in New York City. The company's touring schedule steadily expanded to include cities in the United States and around the world and in 1986 it made its first national television program for the PBS series Dance in America. In 1988, MMDG was invited to become the national dance company of Belgium and spent three years in residence at the Théâtre Royal de la Monnaie in Brussels. The Dance Group returned to the United States in 1991 as one of the world's leading dance companies. Based in Brooklyn, New York, MMDG maintains strong ties to presenters in several cities around the world, most notably to its West Coast home, Cal Performances in Berkeley, California, and its Midwest home, the Krannert Center for the Performing Arts at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. MMDG also appears regularly in New York, Boston, Seattle and Fairfax. In New York, the company has performed at New York City Center's Fall for Dance Festival, regularly performs at Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts' Mostly Mozart and White Light Festivals and collaborates yearly with BAM on performances and master classes. From the company's many London seasons, it has received two Laurence Olivier Awards and a Critics' Circle Dance Award for Best Foreign Dance Company. Reflecting Morris' commitment to live music, the Dance Group has featured live musicians in every performance since the formation of the MMDG Music Ensemble in 1996. MMDG regularly collaborates with renowned musicians, including cellist Yo-Yo Ma, pianist Emanuel Ax, mezzo-soprano Stephanie Blythe, and jazz trio The Bad Plus, as well as leading orchestras and opera companies, including the Metropolitan Opera, English

National Opera and the London Symphony Orchestra.

MMDG frequently works with distinguished artists and designers, including painters Robert Bordo and the late Howard Hodgkin, set designers Adrienne Lobel and Allen Moyer, costume designers Martin Pakledinaz and Isaac Mizrahi and many others. MMDG's film and television projects include Dido and Aeneas, The Hard Nut, Falling Down Stairs, two documentaries for the UK's South Bank Show and PBS' Live from Lincoln Center. In 2015 Morris' signature work L'Allegro, il Penseroso ed il Moderato had its national television premiere on PBS' Great Performances. While on tour the Dance Group partners with local cultural institutions and community organisations to present arts and humanities-based activities for people of all ages and abilities.

The MMDG MUSIC ENSEMBLE, formed in 1996, is integral to the Dance Group. "With the dancers come the musicians...and what a difference it makes" (Classical Voice of North Carolina). The Ensemble's repertory ranges from 17th and 18th century works by John Wilson and Henry Purcell to more recent scores by Ethan Iverson, Lou Harrison and Henry Cowell. The musicians also participate in the Dance Group's educational and community programming at home and on tour. The Music Ensemble is led by Colin Fowler, who began to collaborate with MMDG in 2005 during the creation of Mozart Dances.

Iverson also has been in the critically-acclaimed Billy Hart Quartet for well over a decade and occasionally performs with an elder statesman like Albert "Tootie" Heath or Ron Carter. For almost 15 years Iverson's blog Do the Math has been a repository of musician-to-musician interviews and analysis, surely one reason Time Out New York selected Iverson as one of 25 essential New York jazz icons: "Perhaps NYC's most thoughtful and passionate student of jazz tradition—the most admirable sort of artist-scholar." Krock holds a master's degree in composition from the Manhattan School of Music, where he was a student of world-renowned jazz composer Jim McNeely and acclaimed opera composer Dr. J. Mark Stambaugh. Highlights from his long list of awards and honors include the Aaron Copland Recording Grant, the Manhattan Prize in Composition for his "String Quartet No. 1," two ASCAP Young Jazz Composer's Awards, a composer-residency at the Bloomingdale School of Music, and commissions from the New York Youth Symphony and the Metropole Orkest with Grammy-winning R&B vocalist Lalah Hathaway.

Dance for Parkinson's – regaining a joy in movement

Dance Consortium's Learning and Participation Co-ordinator Fiona Ross visits Mark Morris Dance Group on tour in California and learns dance can be especially beneficial for people living with Parkinson's.

Dance is unique because it uses and strengthens our emotions, cognitive skills, physical abilities and social connections – all of which are vital skills for daily life. While dancing is often considered a recreational activity, the health and medical profession is increasingly involving dance for its positive physical, mental and social health qualities.

Darcey Bussell's recent uplifting BBC1 series Dancing to Happiness revealed how dance is helping those affected by dementia and Parkinson's, as well as young people experiencing mental health issues.

It is a warm September afternoon in a dance studio in Berkeley, California. Mark Morris Dance Group performer Lesley Garrison is leading a group of 20 people through a sequence of dance moves from Mark Morris's Pepperland. Last night, Lesley performed these steps on stage in a 2,000-seat theatre. Today she teaches 20 people living with Parkinson's disease, a condition of the central nervous system which worsens over time and deprives people of the ability to move well.

Everyone in the class, including Lesley and the volunteer dance assistants sit on a chair; Lesley in the centre. Participants share a smile as they concentrate on the movement, arms reaching and feet beating in time to music played by a pianist whose energetic playing accompanies this weekly class at Berkeley Ballet Theater.

It may seem unlikely to run dance classes for people with a movement disorder like Parkinson's. But being a dancer for a few hours a week helps people living with Parkinson's regain confidence in their own bodies and forget the daily impact of their condition.

Mark Morris Dance Group began dance classes for people living with Parkinson's in 2001 at their studio in Brooklyn, New York. Born from the idea that people with Parkinson's could benefit from the insight and methods used by dancers to guide their own bodies and minds.

In Dance for PD® classes, participants explore movement and music in ways that are refreshing, enjoyable, stimulating and creative. The classes quickly attracted interest from both the artistic and health community. Now Dance for PD® provides teacher training and nurtures partnerships among organizations with a reach of 250 communities in 24 countries. A number of company dancers, including Lesley Garrison and Sam Black, are certified Dance for PD® instructors and teach classes on tour.

So, what are the benefits of dance for people living with Parkinson's? Let's be clear, dance is not a substitute for physio or medical therapies. However, dance classes, with their clear structure and emphasis on control, balance, co-ordination and sensitivity to music, can assist in movement and balance and overall wellbeing. Although Parkinson's symptoms vary, for many movement slows, muscles become stiff and some people develop a tremor. Depression is common. There is currently no cure.

Former company dancer and Programme Director of Dance for PD® David Leventhal travels the world leading training programmes and speaking at conferences connecting the Parkinson's community and medical community with the benefits of dance. David explains "the fundamentals of dancing and dance training – things like balance, movement sequencing, rhythm, spatial awareness, and dynamic coordination – seem to address many of the things people with Parkinson's want to work on to maintain a sense of confidence and grace in their movements. But though participants from all over the world tell us they find elements of the class therapeutic, the primary goal of our program is for people to enjoy dance as a form of artistic expression and to discover and explore the range of physical and creative possibilities that are still very much open to them."

Researcher Dr Sara Houston from Roehampton University in London has studied dance and Parkinson's for the last five years. Her research adds to the growing international studies which show the effectiveness of dance for people with Parkinson's. Sara explains "My research participants are passionate about dancing, despite some never having contemplated doing it before being diagnosed. Participants with Parkinson's are able to move more fluidly to music, to perform more exact, more focused movement. They are able to put on clothes more easily up to two days after the class, reach tins from the top shelf."

Dance for Parkinson's is growing in popularity in the UK and Ireland. One person in every 500 has Parkinson's – that's around 145,000 people. The Dance for Parkinson's Partnership UK at People Dancing, the UK development organisation and membership body for those involved in creating opportunities for people to experience and participate in dance, has a map of regular classes on its website. 80 classes are listed and the schedule is updated regularly. The dance styles vary from contemporary dance to ballet to body popping. Classes are usually open to friends and carers, as well as people with Parkinson's.

Back in Berkeley, at the end of Lesley Garrison's Pepperland-themed class, everyone stands. They've completed a challenging class culminating in dance sequences across the room. Now they stand in a circle, holding hands, taking deep breaths. Lesley thanks them for their dancing and they smile. A number of this group saw Pepperland at the theatre and were happy to relive moments from the show in their class, to share in the creative experience of dance.

Chatting after the class, it's clear why these classes have such a positive role to play in the lives of people living with Parkinson's. "If I didn't do this, I wouldn't ever get out of the house" explains one participant. The group disperses into the Californian sunshine. All with a smile, some noticeably moving with greater ease and confidence. The benefits of today's class will last beyond today or this week. This class was filmed and is available on the Dance for PD website, to be watched and followed by people in their own homes.

Dance has a firm place in our hearts thanks to TV programmes like Strictly Come Dancing and a fantastic year-round selection of live dance performances in theatres across the UK. Dance is a great way to keep mobile and active. And for people living with a long-term health condition, the real value of dancing is how it enables people to step out of the role of being a patient, to help them live well with the condition.

"If I didn't do this,
I wouldn't ever get out of the house!"

Notes on the score by Ethan Iverson

It was Fifty Years Ago Today

1. Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band. The original album ended with an unprecedented effect, a very long chord. Fifty years later, perhaps a similar chord is good place to begin...
2. Magna Carta. A formal invocation of personalities from the LP cover.
3. With a Little Help From my Friends. When Ringo sang it, he was on top of the world. Our version is more vulnerable.
4. Adagio. In the age of Tinder, a Lonely Heart advertisement might seem hopelessly quaint. But everyone has always needed to find a match.
5. When I'm Sixty Four. In between 6 and 4 is 5. All three (counts to the bar) are heard beneath the music-hall scuffle.
6. Allegro. A single offhand line of trombone from "Sgt. Pepper" germinates into a full-fledged sonata form.
7. Within You Without You. George Harrison's sincere study of Indian music aligns easily with another Harrison interested in bringing the East to the West: the great composer Lou Harrison, one of Mark Morris's most significant collaborators. The hippie-era sentiment of the lyric remains startlingly fresh and relevant today.
8. Scherzo. Glenn Gould said he preferred Petula Clark to the Beatles. Apparently Gould, Clark, and a chord progression from "Sgt. Pepper" all seem to have inspired this mod number.
9. Wilbur Scoville. The first thing we hear on the LP is a guitar blues lick, here transformed into a real blues for the horns to blow on. Wilbur Scoville invented the scale to measure heat in hot sauce: The original Sgt. Pepper?
10. Cadenza. After seeing Bach's Brandenburg 2 on the telly, Paul McCartney came into the studio and told George Martin to add piccolo trumpet to "Penny Lane." Indeed, detailed references to European classical music are one reason so many Beatles songs still stump the average cover band.
11. Penny Lane. Not on Sgt. Pepper, but nonetheless originally planned to be, and of course especially relevant to the city of Liverpool.
12. A Day In the Life. Theremin nocturne, vocal descant, apotheosis.
13. Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band. Another unprecedented effect on the original LP was a reprise of the first theme, which is part of why it is called the first "concept album." Our later vantage point enables us to project into the next decade, the 70s, and conjure a disco ball. Thank you, Beatles! Thank you, Sgt. Pepper!

Learning & Education

It's never too late to get involved with dance – as an audience member or aspiring performer. Dance Consortium's engagement programmes run alongside tours so audiences can grow their knowledge and love of dance.

This tour features talks, backstage tours and dance workshops for young dancers, families, over 60s and people living with Parkinson's.

Access to world class dance artists is at the heart of our work. Talks are a fascinating way to learn about the ideas and hard work which brings a dance production to the stage. Workshops and creative projects extend experiences beyond the theatre and into schools and colleges to support performing arts and Arts Award.

Our Dance Ambassadors/Future Leaders project, run in partnership with One Dance UK, aims to fire curiosity about careers in theatre by connecting aspiring dancers and arts leaders with theatre staff at Dance Consortium's 18 venues across the UK to learn about different job roles and career options in the arts.
