The John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation is proud to support The Harris Theater for Music and Dance's An Evening of Dance with MacArthur Fellows.

The MacArthur Fellowships, called “genius grants” by the media, celebrate and inspire the creative potential of individuals. Fellows each receive a no-strings-attached stipend of $625,000, which comes with no stipulations and allows recipients maximum freedom to follow their own creative vision. In recognition of the 35th anniversary of the Fellowship, the MacArthur Foundation is supporting a year-long series of performances, discussions, and other events across the country. More information is at www.macfound.org/fellows.

MacArthur is committed to Chicago, our headquarters and our home. For more than 35 years, the Foundation has been dedicated to the needs of the city, its people, and their diverse neighborhoods. We have invested $1.1 billion in over 1,300 organizations and individuals across the metropolitan region — more than in any other place around the world. MacArthur awards $11 million annually to more than 300 arts and culture groups in the Chicago region, including theaters, dance groups, music organizations, visual art programs, film centers, museums, and libraries that sustain the cultural vitality of the area. More information is at www.macfound.org/Chicago.

Program Notes

Kiss

Choreography: Susan Marshall

A sensuous, provocative work performed by one man and one woman, Kiss draws from classical, modern and postmodern techniques to create deep emotional resonances. “My dances reflect my interest in the information we share with each other in our daily lives,” says Marshall, while the Oakland Tribune observes that “the miracle of this piece is that it captures, in concrete dance terms, that almost palpable feeling of swimming in love, of being suspended in eternity.”

Pacific

Choreography: Mark Morris

This “beautiful, contemplative” work was originally created for San Francisco Ballet in 1995. Choreographed on five women and four men, Pacific is danced to the third and fourth movements from Lou Harrison’s Trio for Violin, Cello, and Piano. It marks the third piece Morris choreographed to music by Harrison and the only ballet to date that Morris has set on his own company. As the Washington Post describes, “[The dancers] jump and turn in such synchrony with Harrison’s stormy music that you feel you’re watching the sound unwind from their bodies.”

Springweather and People (duet version)

Choreography: Merce Cunningham

Springweather and People, a work for six dancers, was first performed by Merce Cunningham and Dance Company on May 24, 1955 at Bard College, and remained in the company’s repertory until 1957. The duet version of Springweather and People, danced by Merce Cunningham and Carolyn Brown, was first performed on May 21, 1958 at the University of Pittsburgh, and presented several more times during a European tour that October. The current reconstruction of this duet is based on a film for television made by Norddeutscher Rundfunk Studio Hamburg in October 1958. This film, discovered in NDR’s archives by filmmaker Alla Kovgan in the summer of 2014, is the only existing record of this dance.

Dearest Home (excerpt)

Choreography: Kyle Abraham in collaboration with Abraham.In.Motion

Dearest Home is an interactive dance work focused on Love, Longing and Loss, conducted in a multi-year creative process and scheduled to premiere at the Yerba Buena Center for the Arts in May 2017. Comprised of solos and duets generated from conversations with a variety of age groups and self-identified subcultures, Dearest Home interweaves movement in its most vulnerable or intimate state with Kyle's interest in cross-cultural conversation and community action. In addition, these solos and duets may be broken up and performed as individual works.

Boards & Chains (excerpt from ETM: Double Down)

Choreography: Michelle Dorrance & Nicholas Van Young

Boards and Chains represents a number of things to tap dancers in a contemporary dance world. Often treated like the bastard dance form, tap dancers are not allowed to perform on most floors. A wood floor is truly an instrument and an integral part of the creation and execution of any tap dance work, but dancers and choreographers are often relegated to the small instruments they create and provide themselves. The instruments used in this excerpt are the heart of the acoustic section of ETM: Double Down. In an effort to contrast inorganic/electronic sounds, this excerpt explores organic/acoustic sounds, while the composition brings counterpoint, polyrhythm, tone, texture, and a natural physical and sonic dynamic to the forefront.

Kyle Abraham | Abraham.In.Motion MacArthur Fellow, Class of 2013

I'm finally arriving to a point where I feel a sense of artistic freedom. And I have The MacArthur Foundation to thank for that. I no longer have to work with people who don't make me happy...and I don't have to take work that doesn't inspire me or bring me joy.

—Kyle Abraham

2016 Doris Duke Artist Award Recipient and 2015 City Center Choreography Fellow, Kyle Abraham (Pittsburgh, PA) is a 2013 MacArthur Fellow. Previous awards include being named a 2012 United States Artists Ford Fellow, a Creative Capital Fellow, and receiving a 2012 Jacob's Pillow Dance Award. In 2010, he received a prestigious Bessie Award for Outstanding Performance in Dance for his work in The Radio Show, and a Princess Grace Award for Choreography in 2010. The previous year, he was selected as one of Dance Magazine's 25 To Watch for 2009. Over the past several years, Abraham has created works for Hubbard Street Dance Chicago, Wendy Whelan's Restless Creature and in the process of creating his 3rd work for Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater.

In 2011, OUT Magazine labeled Abraham as the "best and brightest creative talent to emerge in New York City in the age of Obama".

The mission of Kyle Abraham/Abraham.In.Motion is to create an evocative interdisciplinary body of work. Born into hip-hop culture in the late 1970s and grounded in Abraham's artistic upbringing in classical cello, piano, and the visual arts, the goal of the movement is to delve into identity in relation to a personal history. The work entwines a sensual and provocative vocabulary with a strong emphasis on sound, human behavior and all things visual in an effort to create an avenue for personal investigation and exposing that on stage. A.I.M. is a representation of dancers from various disciplines and diverse personal backgrounds. Combined together, these individualities create movement that is manipulated and molded into something fresh and unique.

Merce Cunningham MacArthur Fellow, Class of 1985

An integral part of his legacy involves inviting young professional dancers to inhabit the work, so that contemporary audiences can experience it as live performance.

—Merce Cunningham Trust

Merce Cunningham (1919–2009) was a leader of the American avant-garde throughout his seventy-year career and is considered one of the most important choreographers of our time. With an artistic career distinguished by constant experimentation and collaboration with groundbreaking artists from every discipline, Cunningham expanded the frontiers of dance and contemporary visual and performing arts. Cunningham's lifelong passion for innovation also made him a pioneer in applying new technologies to the arts.

Born in Centralia, Washington on April 16, 1919, Cunningham began his professional dance career at 20 with a six-year tenure as a soloist in the Martha Graham Dance Company. In 1944 he presented his first solo show and in 1953 formed the Merce Cunningham Dance Company as a forum to explore his groundbreaking ideas. Together with John Cage, his partner in life and work, Cunningham proposed a number of radical innovations, chief among them that dance and music may occur in the same time and space, but could be created independently of one another. They also made extensive use of chance procedures, abandoning musical forms, narrative, and other conventional elements of dance composition. For Cunningham the subject of his dances was always dance itself.

An active choreographer and mentor to the arts world throughout his life, Cunningham earned some of the highest honors bestowed in the arts, including the National Medal of Arts (1990), the MacArthur Fellowship (1985), Japan's Praemium Imperiale (2005), and the British Laurence Olivier Award (1985). Always forward-thinking, Cunningham established the Merce Cunningham Trust in 2000 and developed the precedent-setting Legacy Plan prior to his death, to ensure the preservation of his artistic legacy.

Michelle Dorrance | Dorrance Dance MacArthur Fellow, Class of 2015

The work we do would not be possible without the MacArthur. This American art form is not supported by our major institutions of culture and the support that the MacArthur fellowship has provided is unparalleled and unprecedented. Preservation, exploration, and innovation are all possible at once.

—Michelle Dorrance

Michelle Dorrance, founder and artistic director of Dorrance Dance, is one of the most sought after tap dancers of her generation and “one of the most imaginative tap choreographers working today” (The New Yorker). A 2015 MacArthur Fellow, a 2014 Alpert Award Winner, 2013 Jacob’s Pillow Dance Award winner, 2012 Princess Grace Award Winner, 2012 Field Dance Fund Recipient, and 2011 Bessie Award Winner, Dorrance performs, teaches and choreographs throughout the world. Mentored by Gene Medler, Michelle grew up performing with the North Carolina Youth Tap Ensemble and has since performed with; STOMP, Manhattan Tap, Savion Glover’s ‘Ti Dii’, JazzTap Ensemble, Barbara Duffy & Co, Rumba Tap, Derick Grant’s Imagine Tap and Jason Samuels Smith’s Chasing the Bird to rave reviews. She holds a BA from New York University and teaches on faculty at Broadway Dance Center.

Dorrance Dance / New York aims to honor tap dance’s uniquely beautiful history in a new and dynamically compelling context, not by stripping the form of its tradition, but by pushing it: rhythmically, aesthetically and conceptually. Street, club and experimental dance forms—all of which are American dreams—awake to the sound of furious rhythms, and find their boundaries missing. Tap dance, America’s most long-standing indigenous jazz vernacular, is here to receive its due. (dorrancedance.com)

Tarell McCraney
McArthur Fellow, Class of 2013

Tarell Alvin McCraney is a playwright. His most well-known works, a triptych collectively titled The Brother/Sister Plays (2009), weave West African Yoruban cosmology into modern-day stories of familial self-sacrifice, unrequited love, and coming of age. In Head of Passes (2013) and Choir Boy (2012), McCraney draws on themes that run throughout the Book of Job and traditional spirituals, respectively, to explore the role of faith and tradition in two very different close-knit worlds. Head of Passes, set in the isolated marshlands of the Mississippi River Delta, dramatizes a matriarch's struggle to maintain her faith as her world literally falls apart around her. In Choir Boy, students at an elite boarding school remain united in their dedication to performing traditional spirituals even as they navigate the fraught nature of adolescent self-expression.

In addition to writing new works, McCraney is committed to bringing theatre to elementary and secondary school students, particularly in underserved communities in his hometown of Miami.

Tarell McCraney received a B.F.A. (2003) from DePaul University and an M.F.A. (2007) from Yale University. He was the International Writer in Residence for the Royal Shakespeare Company (2008–2010), where he remains an associate artist, and a Hodder Fellow at the Lewis Center for the Arts at Princeton University (2009) before becoming an ensemble member of the Steppenwolf Theatre Company in 2010. He is also a resident playwright at New Dramatists and a member of Teo Castellanos D-Projects in Miami.
